

ABOUT MITOLO GROUP

The Mitolo Group is a successful family-owned business consisting primarily of Comit Farm Produce, Mitolo Wines and the The Mitolo Group USA, Inc.

Bruno Mitolo and his wife, Angela, are the driving force behind Comit Farms' success. Comit Farms is the southern hemisphere's largest producer of potatoes and onions. Bruno takes a hands on approach to the business, while his three sons Frank, John and Darren each play key roles shaping the future of the company.

Frank's Italian family roots inspired early interest and enthusiasm for good food and great wine. Mitolo Wines was established in 1999 and a year later the first Mitolo wine was launched. It was named G.A.M., after Frank's three children, Gemma, Alexander and Marco. Each Mitolo wine is nurtured and developed with zealous passion sparing no effort or investment to ensure the best of everything is brought together to make wines of purity, elegance and power.

Mitolo Wines swiftly achieved international recognition with outstanding reviews from globally acknowledged wine critics and a market demand outstripping supply. The wines are now found on the finest shelves and in some of the best restaurants, bars and hotels across more than 20 countries.

The Mitolo Group USA, Inc. is the newest edition to the Mitolo Group with the head office situated at Sarasota, FL. The US operation, mainly responsible for the introduction of the ollo Extra Virgin cold-pressed olive oil blends, is headed by Roger Ley.

They are able to meet the desired quality and taste of ollo through the processing of fruit, from approximately 110,000 carefully chosen Tuscan olive trees, in their newly built facility located in the heart of South Australia's Riverland region.

With only the highest quality home grown Australian Olives processed within hours of harvest, ollo has become a Premium brand of Extra Virgin Olive Oil and has won multiple awards since its 2005 launch.
